

PHOTOGRAPHICS ROTATION | Olivia Ou

For this rotation, I picked out 3 photos representing the different sides of London in my experience of living here so far. Including one of nature, underground and a museum interior. I created a repeated pattern using an image of a swan I took while on a walk around my accommodation because it looked quite lonely. I wanted the crowded feeling to dominate the photo, so I kept that in front. In contrast to the atmosphere of the underground where it is usually quite fast-paced and so loud to a point where you can't even have a normal conversation with people you are right next to. I took the picture of the underground through the windows; I like that it shows a blurry reflection of a man. It doesn't distract the audience from the swans, but it is something interesting that you will notice if you look at the image for a bit longer.
